Blue and Green: Coastal Cities and Environmental History

The Earth at Night. Source: NASA

This paper explores the complex environmental relationships of coastal cities with the sea. Using examples of different types of coastal cities, it surveys how growing urbanisation, trade, industrialisation and tourism impacted on shorelines and the sea over time. It asks how communities have adapted to the challenges and risks of living in coastal cities and offers some suggestions for further research.

Talks are free and public. Please just email V.J.Taylor@greenwich.ac.uk or book here on Eventbrite <https://coastalcities.eventbrite.co.uk>
